Tax Differences and Agreement

Disagreement of Millions Exist Between Senate and House Over New Tax Bill—Points in Agreement and Disagreement.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Differences amounting to millions of dollars exist between the senate and house in the new tax reduction bill.

Herewith are the points on which the two houses are agreed, and which consequently will be incorporated in the new law, and also the principal points on which differences exist:

Agreement.

1. Normal taxes of 13 1/2 per cent upon the first $4,000 of income, 3 per cent of income between $4,000 and $8,000 and 5 per cent on incomes above $8,000, as compared to the existing 2, 4 and 6 per cent rates.
2. Personal exemptions of $1,500 for single persons and $3,500 for married persons, as compared to the existing $1,500 and $2,500 exemptions. The increased exemptions require 2,350,000 persons of all federal taxes.
3. A flat 25 per cent reduction of the net tax upon earned income with a minimum limit of $20,000 instead of the present $10,000.
4. Surtaxes ranging from 1 per cent at $10,000 to a maximum rate of 50 per cent $100,000, as compared to the present law which ranges from 1 per cent on $10,000 to a maximum of 40 per cent at $500,000.
5. Repeal of all gift taxes, a relief of $2,000,000.
6. Repeal of all auto truck, tire, tubes and accessories tax, a relief of $24,000,000.
7. Repeal of the so-called "luxury taxes" on cameras, films, firearms, ammunition, slot machines, works of art, jewelry, brooms, bowling balls, riding academies, taxicabs, yachts, tobacco manufacturers and legal debts. A relief of $21,610,000.
8. Repeal of all income tax public utility.
9. Reduction of the alcohol tax from $2.30 per gallon to $1.65 effective January 1, 1927, and to $1.10 effective January 1, 1928.
10. Enlargement of the board of appeals to sixteen members, with a salary increase from $7,500 to $10,000 and numerous administrative changes intended to simplify the collection or payment of taxes.

Disagreement.

1. Capital stock tax: Repealed by the senate; present tax of $1 per 1,000 retained by the house.
2. Corporation tax: Increased to 1 1/2 per cent by the senate; present tax of 1 1/2 per cent retained by the house.
3. Estate tax: Repealed by the senate, with a retroactive reduction to a maximum of 25 per cent on estates of decedents who died since June 4, 1924, present tax, reaching a maximum of 40 per cent, reduced to 20 per cent by the house, with a provision granting a maximum credit of 30 per cent for all estate taxes paid to the states.
4. Automobile and motorcycle tax: Repealed by the senate, a reduction of $116,000,000; present tax of five per cent reduced to three per cent by the house, a $46,400,000 reduction.
5. Admissions and dues repealed by the senate, a $23,000,000 reduction; present tax of 10 per cent retained by the house, but a $4,000,000 reduction granted by exempting the "legitimate spoken word."
6. Surtaxes between $26,000 and $41,000: Rates beginning with seven per cent at $26,000 and increasing one per cent for every $4,000 up to 17 per cent at $44,000 repealed by senate; rates starting at eight per cent, but giving no reduction over existing rates on incomes between $30,000 and $44,000, retained by the house.
7. The two branches also disagreed over creating a joint tax commission. The house provided for fifteen members, including five persons from the general public, but the senate excluded the public.

Thousand People See Electric Home

Kingston's Red Seal Electric Home Open Sunday Afternoon and Evening—Must Be Seen by Day and Night to Be Appreciated.

The Red Seal electric home on exhibition at 24 Emerson street continues to draw crowds daily. Over a thousand people have inspected this home during the first week of exhibition. Pearl, Main and Janet streets as well as Emerson street have been plowed and the sidewalks have been cleared of snow. The bright spotlights focused on the house make it as accessible at night as in the afternoon.

The Courtesy and Genuine Interest of the guides in explaining every feature to each guest add much to the pleasure of seeing this well equipped, modern home. Each one is urged to come again since it is practically impossible to absorb all of the ideas on one inspection. To be fully appreciated the house must be seen in the daytime and at night. Almost every day some new lamp or appliance is displayed. The new dining ball for desk use has just arrived. There is a new service table in the dining room and an unusual pendant light in the guest room.

The Red Seal Electric Home

exhibition is being directed by the Electric Service League of Kingston. Through the cooperation of the Kingston merchants the house has been completely furnished throughout.

The Exhibition Home is open on Sunday as well as week days from 2:30 until 5:30 in the afternoon and again in the evening from 7:00 until 9:30.

This is an educational project not a commercial one. The exhibition is free to you and your friends.

Senate Passes Tax Bill, 58 to 9

Democratic Party Split in Senate Over Measure—Final Enactment Within Ten Days Is Believed.

Washington, Feb. 13.—With bitterness in its wake but all sides in congress intent on finally enacting it within ten days, the new federal tax reduction bill was sent to "conference" today for the adjustment of provisions upon which the house and senate disagreed.

As enacted by the senate, the bill would raise $2,232,000,000 in revenue while slashing present taxes $466,251,000 as compared to the $327,161,000 relief provided by the house. The senate bill exceeded by $131,000,000 the tax reductions by the treasury department and drew a warning from secretary of the treasury that it might lead to federal default at the end of the next fiscal year.

Alternately praised as "a victory for democracy" and denounced as a "millionaire's relief bill," the measure left a divided Democratic party in the senate. Its passage by a vote of 58 to 9 came only after Senator James A. Reed, Democrat of Missouri, heatedly attacked his colleagues, referred to them as political "cowards" and charged them with surrendering to Secretary Mellon. In defending the minority, Senator Simmons, Democrat of North Carolina, declared the bill represented the "greatest Democratic tax victory" in all history.

In its present form, the bill provides a $219,000,000 reduction upon personal income taxes. The normal taxes would be reduced $97,000,000, the surtaxes $119,000,000 and the capital-gains tax $2,000,000. Of these reductions, $52,200,000 would go to incomes of less than $10,000; $46,300,000 to incomes between $20,000 and $100,000 and $120,500,000 to incomes above $100,000.

The speech of Reed attacking the measure was one of the most vitriolic ever heard in an inter-party row.

"What did we get out of our trade with the Republicans?" Reed demanded. "They got all they wanted before we stood here like Roman phalanx, with the insurgents on our flank, and we wrote a bill for the people. The insurgents have not deserted us. There were no cowards among them. But the great battle fleet of the Democracy pulled its flag to half mast and surrendered."

"Mellon has won his fight. He has undermined the Democracy."

Countess Wants Earl Deported

Countess of Cathcart Says Earl Craven Is As Guilty As She—Not Interested in Countess, Says Craven.

New York, Feb. 13.—From her room at Ellis Island, where she is being detained pending her appeal from the decision of special board of inquiry barring her from this country because of a confession of "moral turpitude," Vera, Countess of Cathcart, today sent out the following message:

"Craven must be deported if I am. This is too cruel and the British government must take it up."

"If I am guilty, he is guilty, of course. But I am not guilty. I am not an immoral woman, though it was true I was divorced in 1919."

"I'm not interested in him. I don't care whether he is alive or dead. I'm interested only in fair play."

Craven is the Earl of Craven with whom the countess of Cathcart eloped several years ago, creating a tremendous sensation in British society circles. Her husband subsequently divorced her. The Earl of Craven where they have recently been guests of honor at many society receptions, and his wife is now in New York.

The Earl today reiterated his denial that he had anything to do with the order barring the countess.

"I'm actually not the least interested in her now," he said. "I had no idea she was here until a friend called my attention to it."

"I really don't know who started the proceedings to keep her out but would like to know."

Asked point blank if he didn't think he was as guilty as the countess of "moral turpitude," he blinked for a minute and then said: "Really, I can't answer that question."

Countess Mima, wife of the Earl of Craven, denied today that she had any feeling of revenge on the countess.

"The past is dead," she said. "I have feelings of revenge toward this woman, who, anyone might know, caused me many hours of grief and suffering. My husband and I have started on a new and happy life together and just want to be left alone."

No Hard Coal for Several Weeks

Now that the anthracite coal strike appears to be practically settled, the next question that interests Kingston's coal burners is just how long will it take for hard coal to arrive here after the miners return to work. It is not thought that the miners will resume operations next week and in all probability no hard coal will be received in Kingston from the mines until some time in March. Just when hard coal will come through no one can state definitely. As the strike has been in progress for six months, all the hard coal supplies have been exhausted throughout the country.

Pal and Tutor of Chapman Caught

Norbert A. Peterson and Three Others Arrested After Battle—Charged With Robbing Post Office at Eastview, N. Y.

New York, Feb. 13.—Norbert A. Peterson, prison pal and tutor of Gerald Chapman and George "Dutch" Anderson, was arrested after a furious battle with police here early today.

Peterson and three others, also in custody, are charged with robbing the United States post office at Eastview, N. Y., last January.

Arrested with Peterson, who, the police say, fled from Scotland, where he was sentenced to death for helping draft dodgers evade war service, were another man and two women. The others identified themselves as Majorie Peterson, 15 year old sister of Norbert; "Dad" Lackey, 16, a model; and Richard Caston.

Chapman and Anderson sat under Peterson in a class conducted by Peterson in Auburn prison in 1919. Later the triumvirate became friends, the police said.

Debonair and suave as his notorious disciple, Chapman, Peterson denied connection with any crime. When confronted with State Trooper Quinn, who knew him of old, Peterson laughingly admitted his identity and later began prating of his exploits.

Post office inspectors and state troopers had trailed the band for weeks, coming up with them several times only to have them slip through their fingers. This morning they located them in an up-town restaurant and laid the snare which finally caught their quarry.

A brief tussle followed the appearance of the officers. The women screamed and Peterson and Caston attempted to slug their way to freedom.

Outside the restaurant, the detective said, they found an expensive limousine which was stolen in Albany last week. Within the car they discovered an assortment of burglar's tools including electric drills, two hundred forged certified checks, four sets of stolen automobile license plates, and scores of money order blanks stolen from the Eastview post office.

Peterson smilingly told the police at headquarters how he had realized more than $20,000 on the stolen money order blanks. These blanks he made out to himself, for amounts just under a hundred dollars and enclosed them in a self addressed envelope which he used for identification.

The prisoner, the police said, has a long criminal record having served terms for burglary, forgery and felonious assault.

Advance Crews Prepare Way for Mine Opening

Production Will Begin the Day the Mines Open After Ratification—Era of Unparalleled Prosperity Is Indicated at Every Turn.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 13.—The anthracite field today feverishly began its struggle to get back to normalcy.

Worn by months of strife that cost

it almost $1,000,000,000 in addition to suffering and the toll of human life, this industrial battlefield lost no time in tossing aside the weapons of warfare and donning the mantle of peace.

Three Killed in Pier Washout

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 13.—Three employees of the Union Oil Company were killed today when the company's wharf at Ventura, California, was washed out by heavy seas.

Three hundred feet of the 300 foot pier was destroyed, causing damage totalling $30,000, the oil company officials said.

Waves Destroy Buildings.

San Francisco, Calif., Feb. 13.—The second serious storm to hit the California coast in a week was raging today.

Swept in by a 60 mile gale, mountainous waves were battering at piers and buildings located near the sea and keeping ships in protected ports.

Damage estimated at $250,000, was done to the piers and buildings at Santa Cruz yesterday.

Two men were drowned at Santa Monica.

Coal Company Stocks Jump

New York, Feb. 13.—Stocks of the coal companies and coal-carrying railroad companies made a vigorous response in the stock markets today to the termination of the anthracite coal strike.

Lehigh Valley common stock jumped four points on the first transaction of 3,000 shares and sold at the year's high price of 57. Reading gained about two points; Delaware Lackawanna and Western rose 3 1/2 points to 157, while Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company advanced two points to above 45.

Glen Alden coal stock on the Curb sold at $165 a share for the first time this year, a gain of six points.

Girl Killed in Coasting Mishap

Novelist Asks Coolidge to Aid

Countess Cathcart and Permit Her Entry Into U. S.—Neale Says He Has Tried Everything Without Success.

London, Feb. 13.—President Coolidge was today urged to intervene in the case of Countess Cathcart and permit her entry to the United States, by Ralph Neale, English novelist who is to marry the countess in March.

Neale, who is distracted and worried to the point of exhaustion over the banning of the countess, sent a long cablegram to the president requesting him to take action and assuring him that there is no reason why the countess should be banned.

Prominent persons in London are understood to have interested themselves in the case, and although no official statement has been made it is understood that the foreign office has instructed the British ambassador to make an inquiry and to lodge a protest if advisable.

Neale's cablegram follows:

President Coolidge, White House, Washington.

As the dance of Vera Lady Cathcart, now detained at Ellis Island, I may earnestly plead for your gracious intervention on her behalf.

RALPH NEALE.

"I have tried everything I could think of to get the American government to act and they seemed nothing else left for me but to appeal direct to the president," said Neale to the International News Service. "I am sure that he will not permit the countess to remain locked up on Ellis Island over Sunday."

"I have been working night and day for Lady Cathcart until I am dog tired. I have done everything possible with little success. That I have been in hourly communication with foreign office officials but they say it is a domestic matter, and explain that they cannot interfere. They promise to help but they are tied down by diplomatic usage."

Pilot Smith Is Burned to Death

When His Plane Crashes Into Tree at Montpelier, Ohio—One of Most Competent and Intrepid in Air Mail Service.

Bryan, Ohio, Feb. 13.—Superintendent Shaeffer of the United States Air Mail Service was due here from Cleveland today to launch an investigation into the cause of the death of Pilot Art Smith, who was burned to death when his plane crashed into a tree near Montpelier, Ohio, shortly before midnight.

Authorities are puzzled as to the cause of the accident. Smith was known throughout the country as one of the most competent and intrepid men in the air mail service. Residents of Montpelier have reported visibility as "good" at the time that Smith's plane took a header into a tree top, burst into flames and fell to the ground.

Smith was the second pilot to meet death in the service since the night air mail service was inaugurated July 1, last. Pilot Charles H. Ames crashed to his death during a heavy fog near Bellefonte, Pa., last October.

Smith left Chicago at 8:35 last night and was due in Cleveland at midnight. Residents of Montpelier, near where he was killed, said that his plane was flying low when he hit the tree.

Smith was one of the pioneer flyers of the United States. Only 33 years of age, he had been flying since he was 16. He joined the air mail service April 1, 1923, and has been carrying the mail over the eastern division since that time.

The dead pilot, noted among aviators for his intrepid bravery, was credited with being the originator of sky writing, using smoke during the day and flames at night. He also excelled in all forms of stunt flying.

National Food Products Suit

Washington, Feb. 13.—The federal government struck again today to break up another giant food products combination.

On the heels of its action against the Ward Baking interests, the department of justice filed suit today in the federal district court in New York against the National Food Products Corporation.

The government sought an injunction under the anti-trust laws and the Clayton act to prevent the corporation from acquiring stock control in a number of nationally known food products companies.

The National Food Products Corporation is a Maryland concern maintaining offices in Baltimore and New York. It is incorporated for $1,000,000.

Other defendants named were: H. C. Bohack, Brooklyn; C. G. Burden, Pottstown, Pa.; L. Benedict, Orange, N. J.; B. S. Halsey, New York; J. A. MacDermott, Philadelphia; Charles B. Crane, Plainfield, N. J.; Ernest H. Wands, New York; William H. Hall, New York, and Ernest J. Hallberg, New York.

All defendants are officers and directors of the corporation.

The complaint charged that the National Corporation was seeking to obtain control of the following companies:

H. C. Bohack Company, Inc. James Butler Grocery Company. United States Stores Corporation. David Lender Grocery Company. United States Dairy Products Company. First National Stores, Inc. Abbott's Alderney Dairies, Inc. The Jordan Company. Reid Ice Cream Company. Detroit Creamery Company. National Dairy Products Corporation. Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

Gross sales of the corporations which the National seeks the acquire are approximately $700,000,000 annually, the government petition stated.

"The corporate defendant has acquired, and proposes to acquire in the immediate future, stock of corporations engaged in interstate commerce, in the business of producing, collecting, preparing, manufacturing and distributing milk, cream and other dairy products, ice cream and other frozen products, groceries, breads, meats and other food stuffs," the petition said.

"The effect of such acquisition, or the use of such stock, will be to substantially lessen competition, between these corporations; to restrain interstate trade in certain sections of the country; and will tend to create a monopoly of one or more lines of commerce."

PRESERVE OF ANNE HELENE'S STILLMAN.

Paris, Feb. 13.—"The presence of Anne, has made our reconciliation complete—final—definite."

James A. Stillman made this statement to the International News Service today, following a family reunion last night between Mr. and Mrs. Stillman and their daughter, Anne Stillman Davison.

"The presence of Anne has helped to bring back the atmosphere of our home," he said.

Fifi Stillman, with her daughter Anne, was in the meantime making a very determined offensive on the Paris shops. She said that her one idea at present is "to plunge into an orgy of shopping."

"I must make myself beautiful for my husband, said Mrs. Stillman with sparkling eyes," because it seems as though we were married yesterday, but it's better in fact because no one can really know the value of love and happiness until they have suffered and we have suffered more than the world will ever know."

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 13.—The mystery of a white girl's wedding in a local negro church to a New Haven, Conn., army man after she had been left waiting at the altar by her first bridegroom, stirred Cambridge today.

Miss Aileen G. Best, 17, was standing beside her father, janitor of the church, but her intended husband, William J. Halligan, 21, failed to appear. Halligan's war time "buddy," Henry Douglas, native of New Haven, of the U. S. Army, stepped forward, confessed his love for Miss Best, and asked to be allowed to take Halligan's place. A few days later, after they secured a marriage license, the same church and the same wedding guests witnessed the Best-Douglas nuptials.

Before the wedding, however, Halligan called on Miss Best, refused to explain why he failed to appear and went away dejected when told she was to marry Douglas.

THE FUSSY TAPIR

"Although I lived at one time in woods which were far from neat and clean—for woods can be neat and clean as much as houses can," said the Malay Tapir, "still there are some things about which I am very fussy."

"I must have my potatoes boiled. Whether the world at large knows that or not, I do not know."

"But in case they do not know, or that they have forgotten, I am going to the trouble (though it is really but little trouble) of telling them again."

"Yes, I must have my potatoes boiled. Of course they aren't all my potatoes."

"At least I mean that I do not own all potatoes. When I spoke first it sounded a little as though all potatoes were mine."

"I said, 'My potatoes'."

"I mean the potatoes that I am to have must be boiled. There, that is quite clear."

"I will not eat them raw. There may be some tapirs who would eat raw potatoes, but I am not among their number."

"No, no raw potatoes for this tapir. Only the boiled ones for me."

"To be sure, I love the water, and when I was in my wild state I did not mind if the water happened to be dirty or if it was full of weeds."

"In those days I was not fussy."

"But, as I said, I am not fussy about some things and I am fussy about others."

"In this way I'm like other creatures."

"Fussy in some ways—not fussy enough in others."

The Malay Tapir looks something like an elephant. His nose is long

"That's so," agreed the Malay Tapir, and looks as though a trunk had started to grow and had then become discouraged."

He is a cousin of the South American tapir.

"You have said that there were some things about which you would be fussy," said the South American Tapir, "and you have only mentioned one."

"You have merely said, several times over, that you insisted upon having your potatoes boiled—or rather, the potatoes that were to be yours."

"That's so," agreed the Malay Tapir. "Well, I will tell you another thing about which I am fussy."

"Mrs. Malay Tapir is just the same way about this too."

"In fact we are so fussy about it that we don't allow it."

"What is that?" asked the South American Tapir.

"You let the little baby tapirs come to the zoo. You like to have them born here, but Mrs. Tapir and I do not."

"All of the Malay Tapirs are the same."

"They do not have the baby tapirs born in the zoo. Whereas you South American Tapirs do."

"So baby tapirs are among the things about which we are fussy. We're too fussy about them to let them come here."

"We think they should be born in the forests where they can enjoy the dirty water and all the rough, wild life of the tapir."

"You're fussy about babies and boiled potatoes," said the South American Tapir.

"Oh, well," he added, "there is no accounting for the queer ways some creatures have. The tapir babies would like the zoo as well as the dirty water no doubt."

"Maybe," said the Malay Tapir, "but we won't allow it."

"The zoo people have to do as we say—they must boil our potatoes and they can't have our babies coming to us here in the zoo."

"We won't allow it."

"You're a fussy tapir, all right," said the South American Tapir.

Just a Hint

"Gramma," called out Billy, "our neighbor's boy is hungry. May I give him some of my apple?"

"Of course you can, my dear boy," commented grandma.

"But I haven't any apple," said the dear boy.

Reason for Breakage

I sold to my grandpa, who was inclined to be destructive, "I am not going to give you any more new toys. Here is this pretty train of cars all broken."

"Cause they got broken they were in a train wreck," he replied.

"Mother," said the little boy, after coming from a walk, "I've seen a man who makes horses."

"Are you sure?" asked his mother.

"Yes," he replied. "He had a horse nearly finished when I saw him; he was just nailing on his back feet."

Why I Love Florida.

I love Florida.

Its people are the best the north can produce.

Its climate is the most inviting that ever existed in a prospectus.

It presents glorious opportunities to make money in orange plantations, on city lots and on paper.

Its ocean frontage has more building sites than a realtor can shake a stake at.

I love Florida.

I have never been there.

Small Treasure Trove

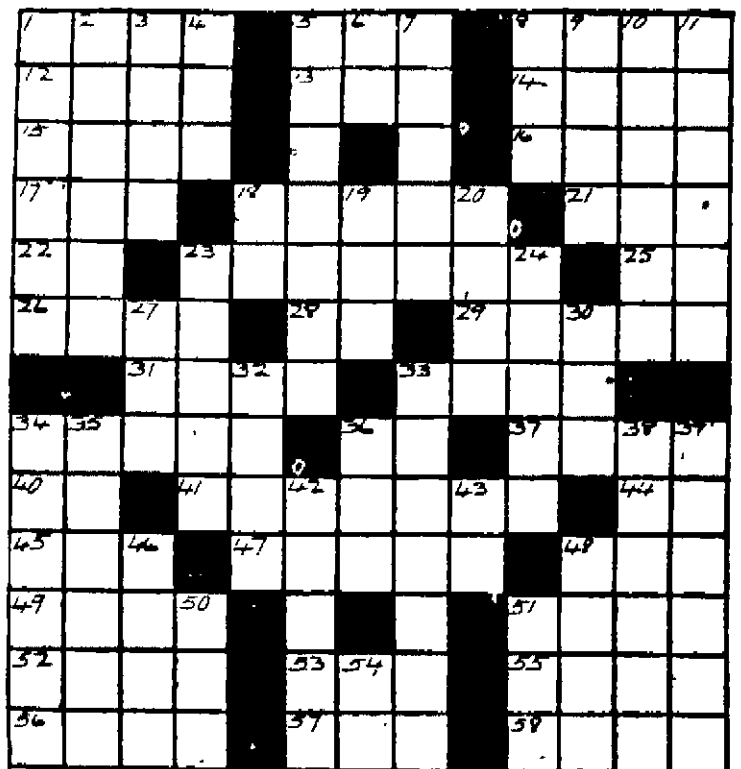

In 1920 a London dealer in antique furniture bought an old writing desk and sent it to his workshop for restoration. In the course of the work the secret drawer, always supposed to turn there, was discovered, and in it were a number of old sheets of unissued English stamps of early date. There had been the owner's private letter stamps, probably kept in this secret place to prevent "forgery" by other members of the household, but every postage stamp had added to their value, and they produced a handsome sum at a sale.

Thieves Had Conscience

C. V. Condon was held up and robbed at Winnipeg, Manitoba, while on his way home with $227, the proceeds of a concert held for the benefit of a Christmas working fund for the poor children of Winnipeg. A day later a stationer called at the campaign headquarters, left a package with the cashier and quietly departed. In the package was found the money and Condon's watch. Allen inside was a note saying: "Sorry we did the job. We did not know where money it was spent $2 before sending."

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

GEORGIA STANDS FIRM.

Pardon and forgiveness were offered to the patriots of Georgia 150 years ago today, but declined. The offer came from Sir James Wright, royal governor in name, but in fact a refugee on the British man-of-war, Scarborough near Savannah. Sir James had wearied of imprisonment in his own house and on February 12, unmindful of his promise not to leave his house except by permission of his guards, had escaped by a back door to a boat which was ready to take him out to the Scarborough.

On the 12th he wrote a lengthy letter in explanation of his flight. At the end of one sentence of 265 words he came to the main point, which was to say that nothing was meant or wanted by the British ships in the harbor "but a friendly intercourse and a supply of fresh provisions." Sir James then urged the patriots "to save themselves and posterity from that total ruin and destruction which I most clearly see at the threshold of their doors."

If they would only abandon their Revolution and be good subjects of the king again, said he, "I will, as far as I can, engage to give, and endeavor to obtain for them, full pardon and forgiveness for all past crimes and offenses; and this I consider them to consider well and most seriously of, before it's too late."

However, the Georgians had nothing to do with the British ships, and they sought pardon and forgiveness for anything. On the contrary, they were in a few days electing delegates to the Continental Congress and giving them broad power to act with the other colonies "in all such measures as you shall think calculated for the common good."

This they did while admonishing the delegates not to lose sight of the defenseless situation of the Colony. "The Indians both south and northwardly upon our backs; the fortified town of St. Augustine made a continental rendezvous for soldiers in our very neighborhood; together with our blacks and Tories with us." Remember, also, they told their delegates, their remote situation from the seat of power and arms which kept them ignorant of the councils and ultimate designs of Congress.

On the extreme southern frontier of the colonies, faced on the coast by a hostile British fleet and on land by savages in the wilderness and Tories in every town, the patriots of Georgia, gave Sir James's offer of pardon and forgiveness no consideration at all.

Ether and Light Waves

Ether is the medium through which, according to the wave theory, light waves are transmitted through space. It has been assumed that such waves as ocean waves are made of water, and sound waves are made of air. Light waves must be composed of something, and to supply this want in our knowledge a medium called ether was imagined. Experiments of different kinds have cast a doubt on the existence of ether, but the facts of radiation and of other familiar phenomena demand a connecting medium which conveniently is called the ether.

Y. M. C. A. AUXILIARY HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

The February meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Friday afternoon. The devotions were in charge of Mrs. W. R. Anderson and in view of the fact that it was Lincoln's Birthday, she read a fine tribute to the memory of Lincoln written by Henry Waterson, a Confederate soldier.

Mrs. George DuBois sent a glowing report of the sleighride to Lake Katrine enjoyed by the "High Y" boys and girls under her chaperonage. The president, Mrs. Longyear, reported the patronage of the lunch room increasing steadily. The "Y" secretary, Mr. Porter, gave a talk containing suggestions for the work of the coming year.

The program consisted of three piano solos by Miss Lucinda Merritt, "At the Spinning Wheel," by Schultze, "A Scotch Poem," by Mac Dowell, and "Stars and Stripes Forever," by Sousa, and the following vocal solos by Mrs. B. M. Charchian: "Rose of My Heart," by Loehr; "Calling Me Home to You," by Dorel; "Danny Boy," by Weatherly, and "The Heart of Her," by Cadman. Mrs. I. Satterlee was in charge of the social hour and dainty refreshments were served.

THE old-fashioned market place that our grandfathers knew has just about become a matter of history. But the market idea is more effective today than ever before.

This newspaper is your market place; it is the modern means of displaying goods before the whole community. With your paper spread before you, all the necessities and luxuries of life are ready for your selection.

Newspaper ads have entirely changed our habits of living. How they have simplified and improved the system of buying and selling! Today it is not necessary for the buyer to go to market; rather, the seller—yes, the market itself!—comes to you, in the comfort and privacy of your home.

Form the habit of reading the ads and discussing them. Include the children in these important meetings. Let them "go to market" with you, and learn the business of selection and purchase. It will mean money saved—and more happiness gained in exchange for what you decide to invest.

RADIO PLAY USES NUMEROUS TRICKS

Experiments and Study Show Which Sounds Broadcast Best.

San Francisco.—Experiments and study of the technique of the radio drama, conducted systematically over a period of months on the air and in the laboratories of the Pacific coast, have created a craftsmanship that promises interesting development of this form of theatrical entertainment.

Like the motion picture, the radio play has given birth to a new art, as the principles of a successful microphone performance are distinct—unlike those involved in the writing or presentation of a stage or screen production.

Shakespeare was a natural writer of radio "scenarios," Carl W. Rhodehamel of the staff of the General Electric station, KGO, says western producers have found. But there are so few authors or playwrights whose efforts can be utilized without almost complete reconstruction that attempts to adapt popular or classical plays are diminishing. Instead, western studios are bending their efforts toward the development of the radio playwright, recruiting principally from amateur ranks.

What's It All About? For definition of broadcast drama Rhodehamel has accepted this: "The radio play is a series of sound pictures printed on a film of time." He conceives the patron of this art as "an eavesdropper listening in on real life."

The producer's task, Rhodehamel believes, is principally to synchronize the rhythm of the three kinds of sound which are the ingredients of the radio drama—music, speech and accessory noises.

Failure to correlate their rhythm results dismally, sometimes humorously, as in the first experiment of "interlapping," when more than one kind of sound was transmitted at time.

In this early test music was placed behind accessory noise and speech with the result that scores of "fans" wrote in complaining that a Los Angeles station was constantly "butting in."

Trying again, rhythm of music accessory noises and speech were synchronized. The listeners then understood that the producers were attempting to tell the same story in more than one way. There were no complaints this time about the southern station.

a door bell, sounds of a scuffle, revolver shots, heavy breathing, hissing wind, clatter and sputter of a starting locomotive are only some of the innumerable "accessory noises" that go into the broadcast play to give it intense realism. These and music, the most highly organized character of sound, raise it from dialogue to a high form of drama with all the thrills and color of a stage success.

Pacific coast producers have decided that 35 minutes is the maximum time the ear of the radio auditor can be kept. So with only an hour and forty-five minutes for presentation of a three-act play, a great part of its plot must be unfolded through suggestion.

To test power of music to sustain interest and preserve continuity of plot, an experimental drama was given in which the climax came in act 1. Reversal of dramatic order seemingly did not forfeit interest of patrons. Many wrote in they had followed the play to the end—furthermore, liked it.

Trick of the Trade. In another experiment a virtual lesson in geography and natural history of China and Tibet was crowded into every paragraph of a play, "The Yangtze River." This offering went over as a dramatic presentation with few criticisms based on its hyper-abundant textbook phrases.

Like the movie radio has made of effective use of "tricks of the trade" in the mechanics of the new art.

KGO has magnified the sound of a buzzing insect to obtain the roar of a wild animal, breaking of toothpicks to picture trees falling in a forest; breathing through a lamp chimney to provide a terrifying windstorm, and talk into a barrel to get the sound of voices in a cave or tomb. Swishing a rag around in a mop pall resulted in a realistic impression of a storm at sea with waves striking against the side of a boat.

Double Tragedy Ends in Romance for Survivors

New York.—A romance that began last March in a double tragedy, has ended in the marriage of William Dempsey and Mrs. Robert Noonan, in New York city.

Dempsey's wife and Mrs. Noonan's husband were found dead in an automobile near Paterson, N. J. last spring. Mrs. Dempsey's baby daughter who was found crying beside the car said Noonan had shot her mother and then killed himself.

The aftermath of the tragedy brought the widow and widower together. Friendship that culminated in the marriage was the result.

FALL OFF MENTALLY DURING LONG FAST

Test Shows Result of Abstinence From Food.

Can you rise to greater poetic heights and to clearer regions of thought on an empty stomach than on a square meal? From earliest times persons have claimed they reached rare esthetic levels by foregoing food, and now a scientist has set out to study the facts.

J. A. Glaze of the University of Chicago tested the psychological effects of fasting on a number of subjects and reported the results to the American Psychological association, which met at Cornell university recently. Two men and a woman lived on water alone for from ten to thirty-three days.

One of the most important facts determined was that the mental efficiency of all the subjects as shown by their performance of tests decreased during the fast in five of the tests out of the total of seven. The average loss in efficiency in comparison with the period before and after the fast, ranged from 1 to 24 per cent.

The subjects, however, gained in bodily steadiness during the fast especially after they had been foodless for a week or more. They were able to point more steadily at small holes with a pointer. They could stand at attention, blindfolded and with vision, for two minutes at a time, with somewhat less wobbling than before the fast.

"The after effects of fasting," Mr. Glaze said, "are beneficial in many ways. One's mental activity seems to be increased, but this only takes place after the fast is over."

The subjects described their various experiences during the fast in diaries which they kept. One of them recalled his dreams and they were mostly about food. The sense of smell, it was agreed, was much more acute while fasting. The pang of hunger were not noticed after the third day.

How physical desires may change with long fasts was illustrated by one of the men who had occasionally enjoyed a cigarette. After about three days he did not want to smoke at all, and only after he began eating normally again did he have any desire to resume smoking.

"SERVICE AT COST"

Periodically some well meaning person or organization suggests that the government go into the electric light and power or some other business and furnish service "at cost." All public service companies such as electric light and power, telephone, gas and railroad companies are today subject to public regulation of a most strict nature. Their earnings are limited by law to a very modest percentage on their investment. The cost of service is the rate which public regulation permits the companies to charge. In the case of electric companies the cost of service includes some $150,000,000 a year paid in taxes.

Under the "service at cost" theory of public ownership, this is virtually the only item that could be deducted from cost of operating an electric property, as publicly owned industries are tax exempt.

But this does not mean that the $150,000,000 in taxes are saved—far from it. Public ownership usually entails heavier taxes for more public employees, and the taxes which the private enterprise would have paid but which the public plant does not pay, must be added to the taxes of the "general taxpayer" who may never have a chance to use the publicly owned property for which he is taxed.

On December 25, 1917, the government took over the railroads, and operated them until March 1, 1920. The loss to the taxpayers was over $1,160,000,000. Today under private ownership, the railroads are paying some $350,000,000 a year in taxes, and losses are met by the stockholders—not the taxpayers.

Too rigid regulation of public utilities has never been a success—public ownership can show nothing but a record of failure. "Service at cost" is a misnomer—it should be designated as "service with part of the cost borne by the taxpayer."

A STARVELING GENIUS.

An autograph letter of Edgar Allan Poe, apologizing for and lamenting his inability to pay $50 which he owed, was sold in New York the other day for $500, ten times the amount of the poet's debt. It was addressed to John C. Cox of Philadelphia in December, 1833, and reads in part:

I am really afraid you will think me the most ungrateful person in the world. Still, in the face of all appearances you would be wrong in supposing that I am not deeply sensible of your kindness. The simple truth is, that the mortification I feel in not being able to repay you, has been the reason of my not calling upon you. From week to week, and from day to day, I have been living in the hope of getting the means of payment, but my greatest exertions have been in vain; and it was only with the most painful sacrifices that I managed to pay Mrs. Jones.

Nobody remembers John C. Cox, the creditor, and all the world is filled with the fame of Poe, the debtor. The pathos of this letter of a struggling, almost starving, genius is the more poignant in consequence of the "greatest exertions" and "painful sacrifices" which it records. No wonder Poe sometimes sought the cup that eased his wracked nerves and dulled his consciousness of misery.

Wage earners in this country earn more, live better, have more recreation and yet save more than workers of any country. Including skilled and unskilled labor, the daily pay of the American workman is approximately that of the weekly pay of the English workman. Yet the demand is equal to the supply in this country, and in some crafts there is a shortage, while in England about 1½ million persons are maintained in idleness on the "dole" which the government contributes. England is regarded as the most tightly unemployed country in the world. Unions in the United States have done much to raise the standards of pay and living conditions. These standards now are at a level where there should be little dissatisfaction, little excuse for labor disturbances and strikes.

The Urban League for the promotion of the welfare of negroes of New York and North Carolina with doing more for colored people than any other states." The metropolis was described as "the most liberal city in the country" and North Carolina was said to be "a link in the chain of the nation in co-operating to improve the negro condition."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

MORE FOOD NEEDED SOMETIMES

We are told these days that we eat too much, and in our hearts we know it to be true.

Our research men investigate the amount of food we should eat, and the amount of waste that should come from the skin, lungs, intestines and kidneys, the amount of work done in the body by the chemical actions taking place in digestion, respiration and so forth.

Now in certain conditions where the heart works faster than normal as in kiltie they find that the amount of work going on is perhaps twenty to thirty per cent above normal in other words the body is doing that much more unnecessary work.

However in certain other conditions they find the body is not doing the amount of work it should do. This is measured by a machine which shows the amount of oxygen the body is using and the amount of waste of carbonic acid that is coming away. It is almost like pitting coal into a furnace and by measuring the smoke and gas fumes that come away, be able to tell how much heat was created.

And so these men have discovered that sometimes enough heat is not manufactured to keep up the processes of digestion, respiration and so forth.

The amount of heat is produced in what way?

From the food eaten.

This means then that because of nervousness, worry or other emotion, the appetite is lost, and enough fuel or food is not taken up to the system.

And so this is a time when the appetite cannot be taken as a guide as to the amount of food that should be eaten.

However it is just here also that a little common sense is used, and so small meals given frequently, of food that will tempt the appetite, is the way your physician gets the extra food necessary to keep up your animal heat.

Eating is more than a pleasure; it is a real serious business as far as that body of yours is concerned.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, Feb. 13.—Owing to the bad conditions of the roads and the intense cold weather the attendance at the church services on Sunday last was below normal.

Mrs. Edith Parades, who has been spending several weeks with her daughter in the city spent a few days the past week with relatives in this village and Tilton.

Mrs. Kate Burr who has been visiting relatives in this village and Tilton the past six months left on Monday for her home in York.

Several from this village attended the hot roast pork supper at Bloomington last Tuesday evening.

The domino party held at the home of Mrs. Adolph Schmitt on Wednesday afternoon, February 3 was well attended by the ladies of the village and a real joyous afternoon was spent. Mrs. Henry Myers who held the highest score carried off the first prize and Mrs. Ralph Lefever won the consolation prize. Coffee, cake and sandwiches were served at the close of the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Snyder and the Misses Helen R. White and Carrie Anderson attended the funeral of Thomas Adair at Poughkeepsie on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Othoudt and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Weep attended the dance at the Armory on Monday evening. They report a very fine time.

Mrs. C. V. Hasbrouck who has been confined to her home with a bad cold is much improved at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Heath of Chicago who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Ollry, Mrs. Heath's parents, the past week left for New York city on Tuesday. Before returning home Mr. and Mrs. Heath will visit Washington, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Andrew J. Snyder, who underwent a serious operation at the Kingston City Hospital on Sunday is doing nicely which is gratifying news to her many friends in this village.

Warren Sammons and daughter left Monday for New York city to attend the funeral of Mr. Rufus Klotz, a cousin of Mr. Sammons.

Radio Health
Talk on Obesity

Cause of Overweight is Overeating. Says Dr. William Munson in Radio Health Talk Friday Over WGY.

"You can weigh what you should if you will it. The cause of overweight is overeating. You never saw a fat man in a famine picture. You are not fat because your father was fat—but because you have your father's trait of being a big eater and you probably acquired the same habit at his table." These are statements taken from a talk on obesity broadcast from Station WGY Friday night by Dr. William L. Munson in one of a series of weekly radio talks arranged by the State Department of Health.

"The fact is but one safe way for a person who is greatly overweight to reduce," continued Dr. Munson. "Consult your physician and do it under safe rules laid down by him. Too rapid reduction in weight is dangerous; unsupervised reduction by one not familiar with dietetics is still more dangerous. There are many foods containing vitamins which are necessary to health and about which most persons have no knowledge. Before reduction is attempted you should have a thorough physical examination. You should be weighed every week and your meals should be properly and carefully proportioned. There should be a sufficient fluid intake in the diet and sufficient bulk but not too much food value. Such a regime can be regulated in a scientific manner only by a physician who knows dietetics.

"There is another class of persons who are not so greatly overweight but are on their way to be two hundred pounders. In this class are persons usually of middle life who have given up some of the activities of their youth and have developed the bad habit of eating more than they require because it 'tastes good.' Usually a reduction in the amount of food will effect the desired results. Generally speaking it means cutting down in carbohydrates, such as potatoes, bread, rich pastries, lessening the fats such as butter, cream and fatty meats, and an increase of fruit, and of the leafy foods such as spinach, lettuce, celery, cabbage and kale. It means taking one ordinary portion and not repeating it. It means eating an average meal and using will-power.

"Satisfaction from eating is quite largely a relative matter. Persons who habitually eat large meals have large and dilated stomachs. It naturally takes more bulk to give such persons that feeling of fullness which to many means enough. After the first weeks of reducing diet, the stomach begins to take a better muscular tone and gets smaller. It will then take a far less amount of food to produce the sensation of fullness.

"In eating, as in most other pursuits which man follows, the mind is the controlling factor. To some persons meat time means moving up to the table, saying nothing, eating all they can hold and then putting the chair back in the corner. Such persons are missing a part of life that is their right. Talk, and take your time at the table. Be sociable. Don't forget that you are a human and that one of the differences between you and other animals is that you can convey ideas from one to another. If you do this and take your time you will find that you require less food and meat time will mean more than biscuits and beefsteak.

"Chew your food slowly. You should not be so busy that you cannot take time for your meals. When you find that your business requires so much time that you must curtail your meal hours then you have ceased being the master of your job. Efficiency does not depend upon the time that you put into your work but in the work you put into your time.

"You often hear 'Oh I know what I should do, but I hate it, and just can't.' The trouble is all in the 'just can't.' If you have been drinking coffee with cream and sugar all your life time you are likely not to like black coffee at first. If you drink your coffee black and stick to it you will find that you like it better that way and dislike it with cream and sugar. We are largely the servants of habits as regards our likes and dislikes in food.

"The biggest factor in the country is the person who fools himself. You can't stint at breakfast and stuff at dinner and get thin. Do not eat more carbohydrates than are allowed in your diet and then swear that the scales are wrong. Be honest with yourself. If you have not the will-power to do this don't blame the doctor or the diet of the scales if you fail to get thin.

"Advertisements that claim to reduce weight by some marvellous discovery are for the most part pure bunk and a plan to get your money. Medicines that reduce weight are dangerous. If you take such drugs you may jeopardize your health. Physicians who use them do so only when they have the patient under the strictest surveillance and then only under special circumstances."

Memorial Service at Fifteen.

All members of Ritten Council, 125, the requested to meet at the council room Sunday, February 21, at 10:20 a. m., to march in a body to the M. E. Church to attend memorial service in honor of Lincoln and Washington's birthday.

Humidity.

Relative humidity is the ratio of the amount of invisible water vapor in a given volume of air to the amount that would make this air saturated at the same temperature. In short, it is the ratio between the amount of invisible water present to the maximum amount that could be present at the same temperature. In measuring humidity only the invisible water vapor is considered, and not the drops of rain or droplets of fog.

Just WHY is OAKLAND WINNING and HOLDING GOOD WILL?

Why are so many motorists everywhere so genuinely enthusiastic over this car? Why are they favoring it above all others?

Is it because the Oakland Six is more beautiful—because it possesses more advanced features, including Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, Full Pressure Oiling System, Four-Wheel Brakes and The Harmonic Balancer? Or because it reveals greater speed, power, acceleration and smoothness of performance?

Each of these features plays its part; but there is an even stronger reason for Oakland Six popularity.

Oakland combines—not just one or two of these advantages but all them—at prices surprisingly low.

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

Early in the year 1837 the city of New York added another to its series of riots. This one brought on by hunger, which will drive any people mad, and while grain and flour were piled high in the storehouses of the merchants, caused what has since been known as the "Flour Riot of 1837."

Various causes had occasioned a short supply and high prices for flour and wheat at this period. A short crop, followed by a speculation influenced by the abnormal condition of the currency, had brought up the price of flour from seven to twelve dollars per barrel. News was circulated of a short crop in Virginia, and of an immediate short supply in New York. The mighty West, that great granary of the world, was not then open as now, and the main supply of grain came from farms east of the Alleghenies.

In Troy, a great depot for state flour, it was stated there were only four thousand barrels against thirty thousand at the same time the previous year. As February came on, a report circulated in the city that there were only three or four weeks' supply on hand. This was repeated in the newspapers, with the information added, that in certain stores were hoarded vast amounts of grain and flour, kept out of the market to compel a still greater advance in price.

Although the stock of grain on hand at this time was small, there was no danger of starvation, nor was it to the instinct of self-preservation that demagogues appealed. They talked of the rich oppressors, the poor, and there was, doubtless, much suffering among the poorer classes.

A public meeting was called in New York city to consider the situation, but it was one of those problems which so public meeting can solve.

The news that the commission houses in Washington street were holding back and increasing their stocks caused a bad feeling in the laboring classes.

On February 10, 1837, a placard reading "Bread, Meat, Rent, Fuel: The voice of the people shall be heard and prevail," summoned a mass meeting at the City Hall Park at four o'clock Monday afternoon, February 12. The placard was signed by eight popular leaders of the poorer class.

The crowd gathered in the cold, made News Jackson chairman, and were told that Hart and Company had fifty-three thousand barrels of flour in their store.

A speaker proposed that they march to this store and offer $100,000 dollars a barrel for the flour, when the mob proceeded in a bold manner down Broadway, along Cortlandt and into Washington street.

The clocks heard the farbell, and hurried to close and bolt the windows and doors. The mob entered the building before the last of the barrels was closed, and began rolling them out into the street.

Mr. Ward rushed the police to the scene, when they were roughly pushed by the mob. Mayor Lawrence hurried to the spot and mounting a flight of steps, began to harangue the crowd, urging them to do not proceed further before brickbats, sticks and pieces of ice were hurled at him and he was compelled to seek a place of safety.

Driving the police officers before them, the mob again entered the building, battered down the doors, and rolled barrels of flour out the doors only to be dashed to fragments on the pavement below.

About five hundred barrels had been thus destroyed when the cry was raised that the soldiers were coming. These were detachments of the National Guard from Colonel Smith's and Meigs' regiments. The flashing of the bayoneted bayonets struck terror into the hearts of the rioters, and they scattered and ran. Many of the rioters were arrested and sent off to Bridewell.

Soon afterward a portion of the mob hurried to a new field of operation at Cortlandt Slip. On the way over, they stopped to demolish the flour store of Merrick & Company. After one or two acts of similar character, but of less damage than at Hart's and Merrick's, the crowd again dispersed—to reflect at their leisure that the best way to bring down the value of an article of necessity is to diminish the quantity.

The "Flour Riot of 1837" was certainly a very original way to bring down the price by attempting to destroy all there was in the city. Compensating of suffering from the want of provisions, they attempted to reduce themselves by putting in possession of their power altogether. With little to eat, they attempted to make it impossible to eat at all. A better illustration of the desperate character of a mob could not be given.

RADIO

The Electrical Schematic Diagram of Toroid RF Simple Three-Tube Set, Using Crystal Detector.

By LEWIS WINNER, in Radio World.

A very simple three-tube set using a crystal as a detector is shown in the illustration. The receiver employs one step of tuned RF with regeneration, a crystal detector and two steps of transformer-coupled audio-frequency amplification.

On most receivers, no matter how many stages of tuned RF you add, the signals of the local stations do not increase much. This was found to be true on tests with such receivers.

The steps were so arranged that they be snapped in and out of the circuit. A station was tuned in. The RF tubes were put in and then out of the circuit. The difference was so small that only with millimeter in the output circuit could the effect be noticed.

There are only about a dozen leads to make. No soldering is necessary. The Orbit toroid coils were used in the set; also air-gap sockets.

List of Parts:

Two tuned radio-frequency transformers (toroids) L1, L2, L3.
One variometer, L3.
One crystal detector, CD (carborundum).

Two audio-frequency transformers, AFT1, AFT2 (Acme).
One 1/2-ampere ballast resistor, R1.
Three sockets (air-gap).

Two .0005 mfd. variable capacitors, with dials, C1, C2 (U. S. Tool).
One single circuit jack or two phone tips, J1.

One 3 1/2-inch dial (for variometer).
One A battery switch.
One 7 by 2 1/2-inch panel.
One cable cord.

One baseboard, 6 by 19 by 1/4".
Accessories: Bus bar, mounting for crystal detector, batteries, phones, antenna, ground and lead-in wire, etc.

The shaft of the variable condenser, C1, that shunts the secondary of the antenna coupler, L2, passes through a hole 3-16 inch in diameter, which is 5 1/4 inches from the left-hand edge of the panel, and 3 1/4 inches from the top and the bottom. Lay the template over this hole and then drill the holding holes according to those laid out upon the template. The same policy is followed with the other variable condenser. The hole through which the shaft of the variometer L3 passes is 10 1/4 inches from both the right and the left-hand edges. It is also 3 1/4 inches from the top and the bottom of the panel. The hole for the shaft of the last variable condenser is 5 1/4 inches from the right-hand edge and 3 1/4 inches from the top and the bottom of the panel. The hole for the filament control switch, S, is 10 1/4 inches from the right and the left-hand edges of the panel. It is 3 1/4 inch from the bottom of the panel. This necessitates cutting away a small bit of the baseboard. The holes for the screws, which hold the baseboard, are best located by the builder, as these depend upon the thickness of the baseboard, etc. I used a comparatively thin board and therefore had to place the screws very near the bottom of the panel.

We have now automatically placed the variable condensers, variometer, board and switch. Angle irons are used to mount the coils onto the condensers. These condensers have special provisions for mounting the coils which are placed at right angles to each other. The set of plates of a variable condenser runs in the opposite direction to the other set of plates. That is, one condenser is mounted upside down. This was done so that the coils could conveniently be mounted. If the condensers are mounted in the regular fashion it will be difficult to mount the coils.

The transformers are mounted at right angles to each other. The crystal detector, which is of the fixed type has a special type of mounting. You cannot fit it into a grid lock holder as it is too small. Therefore take a pair of mountings and bolt them together, seeing when doing so, that the crystal fits into the holder. This is then screwed down to the baseboard and the crystal is fitted into the clips. There was no lack used when this set was constructed, although one is shown in the diagram. A pair of phone clips, mounted at the extreme right of the set, were used. No large binding post strip is used. A battery cable was used instead and attached to the jump or points.

Wiring the Set.

The beginning of the primary winding, L1, goes to the antenna post of the small terminal strip. The end of the same winding, L1, goes to the grid binding post. The end of the secondary winding goes to the G post or socket 1, and to the stationary plate of the variable condenser, C1. The beginning of this same winding, L2, goes to the rotary plates of this variable condenser, C1, and to one terminal of the resistance R1. Now with the variometer you may have some difficulty when wiring up. Most have binding posts, but some, such as the one that was employed in this set, have none at all. If the latter case prevails scrutinize the variometer very carefully. See where the beginning of the stationary winding goes to and also where the end of the rotary winding goes to. In most cases the stationary winding terminal goes to one frame and the rotary end to the other frame. Neither of these frames, of course, is electrically connected. After finding these connections place small tags on them. The rotary winding will terminate at the front of the variometer while the stationary winding will terminate at the back. The rotary winding terminal goes to the P post on socket 1. The stationary winding goes to the beginning of the primary L3 of the second RFT. The end goes to the B+ 45 (1) of the cable. The beginning of the secondary winding L5, goes to the variable plate of the variable condenser, C2, and to the B+ post on the audio-frequency transformer AFT1. The end of this winding goes to the stationary plates of the same variable condenser and also to one terminal of the crystal detector (high potential) marked A on the carborundum. The other crystal goes to the P post of the audio-frequency transformer, AFT1. The F+ post on socket 1, goes to the other terminal of the resistance, R1. The G post on AFT1 goes to the G post on socket 2. The F+ post on the transformer goes to the same terminal that the beginning of L2 went to, or to one terminal of the resistance, R1. The F+ post on this socket goes to the F+ post on socket 1, and also 3. This common lead goes to one terminal of the resistance. This means that the resistance is in the negative lead of the filament. The P post on the socket 2 goes to the P post on AFT2. The B+ post on this socket goes to the B+ 67 1/2-volt cable lead (2). The G post on AFT2, goes to the G post on socket 3. The plate post on the same socket goes to either the top terminal of the single circuit jack or to one terminal of the phone tips. The F+ of this socket goes to one terminal of the filament control switch, S. The other terminal of this switch goes to the A-B cable lead. All the F+ leads from the sockets are common. All the grid returns are placed in the negative lead of the A battery. No C battery is employed, although the same may be used. If you desire to use a C battery, break the two leads that come from the F post of the two AFT, and bring the same to the C+ lead of the C battery. The C+ lead goes to the A- lead.

Simple to Operate.

This receiver is very simple to operate. The only trouble that you may come up against is the difficult controlling of the oscillatory flow of the RF tube. This is due to the fact that any variometers will not oscillate over the complete broadcast band. A small 20-turn coil placed in series with the plate circuit of this same tube will do this. The two condenser dials and tune in steps. Don't forget to tune in steps. Don't forget to tune in steps. Don't forget to tune in steps.

Also reverse the A battery cable. A 100-foot antenna should be used. The ground should be made to a cold faithful water pipe. If you find that the RF tube is difficult to tune, the insertion of a 10-ohm rheostat may help. I say may, because, with one tube it helps and with others it is of no use. That is why bring the filament temperature up to a 250° in air and the tube starts to oscillate in the same manner. If you turn it up, it stops all together. Turn it up, it starts too much. The variometer in this set should do all the controlling of the regeneration. By increasing and lowering the voltage, better or worse results will be obtained. Try changing the tubes around for tender signals. This receiver is selective, and if one finds the results vice versa, they should reverse the secondaries of the radio-frequency transformers.

Simple Tube Repair

A tube with a loose base can be repaired by wrapping a strip of adhesive tape around the joint three or four times, carefully stretching the tape at each turn so as to fit tightly over the top of the metal base and the filaments. After wrapping hold the tube in the closed hand, pressing tightly on the tape for a few moments, to heat the tape, and make the support solid. This will save the tube for future use.

ONE CAUSE OF RADIO TROUBLES IS REVEALED.

Charging Battery by Automobile Power Will Make a Clatter.

Kingston, Feb. 12.

Editor The Freeman:

Let me contribute a few words in the attempt to eliminate the undue radio interference the Kingston fans are subjected to lately.

The probable explanation of this mystery is as follows:

A number of radio fans are using their car batteries in their sets, and have them wired directly to the garage, to avoid the trouble of taking out the battery and putting it back when the car is needed.

When the battery is run down or weakened they start the motor to charge the battery without disconnecting the set. Under those conditions the set acts as a transmitter, radiating the variable current from the motor.

The guilty persons may be entirely unconscious of the havoc they are creating. It would be advisable, therefore, to appeal to those fans that are using their car battery to disconnect the sets when they run the motor to charge the battery.

Yours truly,
G. J. STREZYNSKI.

Frenchman, in Flood, Saves Mattress First

Paris.—The recent floods have produced abundant illustration of the fact that the first household article which the Frenchman rescues when his home is threatened with inundation is the mattress. Strangely enough, the bicycle comes second.

Hardly an exception to this order was noted by a correspondent who watched boatmen moving the inhabitants from one of the Paris suburbs. The women were dry eyed and stern, clasped as they were taken from their flooded homes, but obviously were laboring under great emotional stress. "This is getting monotonous," said one woman who was forced to move to escape the floods in 1910, 1920 and 1924. "This sort of thing might be bearable once in fifty years, but four times in fifteen years is a little too much."

Pledge Always Sacred

When we give a pledge—of secrecy, of help, of friendship—we have given something that we must redeem for our self sake. The trust of others is valuable, but self-respect is essential.

For Happiness and For Entertainment!

For those hours in between, for those hours after dinner, in fact at most times, a Radiola or Freshman Set will bring happiness and entertainment into your home.

DO YOU KNOW that radio reception is at its best now? The U. S. Bureau of Standards says so.

If your home is not already blessed with Radio, now is the time. But be sure to get a good set. Radio is too fine a thing to be spoiled by inferior instruments.

Good Radio Reception During February and March

The best time of the year for Radio reception is right now and for the next two months.

Government Radio statistics show this fact conclusively.

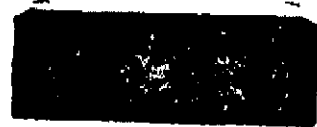

If you have delayed buying a Radio Receiving Set because some of your friends have told of poor conditions, Now you can put that thought aside and go out and make your selection—Now.

There is no entertainment so versatile and enjoyable as a radio. No matter what you like best, it is somewhere on the dial, waiting for you to plug in.

The Radio Dealers of Kingston are prepared to give you the results of their experience. Tell the dealer what you want and he will honestly recommend to you just what you should have.

After you have placed your order and the set has been installed, then the Radio Columns of The Freeman will guide your enjoyment. Cut the Radio program out every day, and keep it handy for reference.

SUPER-ZENITH MODEL X
WITH DUO LOUD SPEAKER

The Super-Zenith X radio reception is always at the high point of efficiency. One of the great problems in the perfecting of radio reception has been to overcome the unpleasant difference in clarity between high and low pitch tones. If the bass viol came through very distinctly, then the tone of the violin was likely to be thin and squeaky and vice versa.

The brilliant, patented, Super-Zenith Duo Loud Speakers (harmonically synchronized twin speakers and horns), reproduce both high and low pitch tones otherwise impossible with single-unit speakers.

Even though a thousand miles may separate you from the great artist, her voice can now pour out its song to you in all its glorious beauty—quite as though she were in your own home.

This great Duo Loud Speaker achievement—coming as a climax to the perfecting of the Super-Zenith circuit—marks Super-Zenith X as the outstanding marvel of the radio world.

Connections and ample chambers for housing batteries are provided for.

We also handle Grebe, Dereswayne, Pfannkohl, Eagle, Master, Radiola, Atwater Kent and Ferguson.

FADA Radio

If it's in the air—FADA gets it

FADA has set a standard of reception by which, more and more, all radio performance is being judged.

Learn what this standard offers you—by a complete demonstration in your own home, without obligation to buy.

The joy of pure, bell-like tone and full volume—the thrill of real distance—the ability to tune in with precision the stations you want as easily as you tune out those you don't want. And Fada Service that guarantees permanent performance!

Hudson Valley Growers Meet

State Horticultural Society to Stage
Eastern Meeting at Poughkeepsie
February 17-19 — Prominent Speakers Expected.

The eastern meeting of the New York State Horticultural Society to be held in Poughkeepsie February 17 to 19, is expected to attract a large number of Hudson valley fruit growers. Talks on various problems of the industry will be given at Vassar Institute, while a large fruit and industrial exhibit will be staged in the armory. E. W. Mitchell of Stuyvesant Falls, recently elected president of the Horticultural Society, will preside at the daily sessions.

Prominent among those who will participate in the formal program are several members of the staff of the State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva and the three representatives of the station who are making a special study of Hudson valley fruit problems. On Wednesday, F. G. Munding will talk on
"Some Insect Pests of the Hudson Valley." E. V. Shear on "Results from the Past Season as a Guide for the 1926 Spray Schedule." H. H.
Tukey on "What the Hudson Valley
Horticultural Investigations are Accomplishing," and P. J. Parrott on "Some Under-valued Factors in Spraying."

Thursday morning F. E. Gladwin, of the Station Vineyard Laboratory at Fredonia, will discuss "Some Phases of Eastern Grape Growing."
Dr. W. H. Rankin, station specialist on raspberry diseases, will speak on that subject, while Richard Wellington, station horticulturist, will describe "Varieties of Berries."

Thursday afternoon, Dr. R. W.
Thatcher, director of the Geneva Station, will address the growers on
"Sources of Nicotine for Insecticide Use." Dr. Thatcher has been making a special study of this subject
during the past few months.

A new feature of the program this year is a provision for a special dinner at the Nelson House on Wednesday and Thursday evenings when an informal discussion of special insect and disease problems will be led by
P. J. Parrott, entomologist at the Experiment Station.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE ECSTATIC DOWP.

We have here a well known, cat-
like creature living in the desert regions of Arizona and northern Mexico. It feeds chiefly on the juice of the cactus plant which it obtains
by drilling a hole with its corkscrew tail into the base of the plant.
Often the juice has fermented under the heat of the sun and if the dowp takes more than three gallons, it becomes extremely intoxicated. Prospectors who have witnessed the scene say that it is very amusing to watch a desert full of these dowps wallowing away in the moonlight from a feast in a cactus bed.

If you are able, after a long and continued search through the attic, to find a hairpin, you will be able to use it nicely for the dowp's tail.
His body is a peanut, while the head is a fiblet. The ears and nose are popcorn, the legs toothpicks, and the feet split navy beans. The cactus plant can only be made from a cactus plant.

STRIKER WEARS HELMET

When striking textile workers of Passaic, N. J., marched to a nearby town to try to persuade other mill workers to join them, one of the strikers wore a steel trench helmet, remembering the clubbing police gave some of his companions several days ago
when their parade was broken up.

Dog Population Shows No Tendency to Drop

An attempt to ascertain how many dogs there are in this country has brought out the fact that about 8,500, 000 are known to the public authorities. They are the dogs that are taxed or licensed.

All that is known about the millions of dogs, the strays, the puppies too young to get their owners into trouble
if they are not reported or tagged, and the dogs kept where no effort is made to register or tax them, is that their number is great. It must surely be enough to bring the total up to 10, 000,000 or more.

That means 1 dog for every 11
human inhabitants, or a fraction over 11. It is somewhat above the proportion of dogs to people in Great Britain. There about 45,000,000 "humans" have nearly 3,000,000 dogs. That is about fifteen persons for every dog.

The English seem to be fond of dogs than Americans, as a rule, but the fraction of the British people who live on farms is very small. Here it is large, and dogs flourish in the country. Their troubles and perils multiply in cities, the bigger the worse.

Beyond doubt, the proportion of men, women and children to dogs is much larger in the United States than it was when this country was more rural and less urban. The contrast today between West Virginia, say, or Kansas and Massachusetts, in the dogs-to-humans ratio, is very great.

But nowhere is there anything to indicate that a dogless age may be not far ahead. The love of sympathetic, loyal, affectionate pets is too instinctive, too deep, too wide for that.
Millions of people are too hungry for devotion, even if it comes from animals in many respects inferior to human beings.

Providence the Scapegoat

Bishop Walter Taylor Sumner said in an after-dinner speech in New Orleans:
"We are too prone to lay the blame on Providence for misfortunes that are really our own fault. Providence is fact, is getting a bad name."
"An old colored woman was fattening a Christmas turkey, but it got drenched just before Christmas in its leaky bath, and in a few days pneumonia carried it off. So the old woman and her pastor called to console her in her great loss."

"He laid the blame, of course, on Providence."
"Doubtless all is for the best," he said. "Providence, you know. Here we see the hand of Providence."
"The old colored woman gave the table a smack with her fist."
"Fist it?" said she. "Providence betwixt look out, dass all. Dere's one fust you'll let dat Providence go too
fust?"

Biggest Ball Of the Season

Armory Thronged at Charity Ball
Given by Knights of Columbus—
Over 2,200 People Delighted With Entertainment Features, Decorations, Music and Dancing.

Over 2,200 people attended the Charity Ball of the Knights of Columbus at the armory on the evening of Lincoln's Birthday. This huge crowd saw one of the prettiest sights ever seen in the armory than was completely hidden by bands of the rich blue and red that are the colors of the K. of C. Side walls, balcony and canopies over the bleachers were completely covered with these colors, with here and there K. C. in gilt letters. The large overhead lights were huge tassels of the same colors and the booths and refreshment room were made attractive with a more delicate treatment of the same colors. Hanging from the center of the ceiling was a large and handsome K.
of C. banner, and there were also suspended from the rafters emblems in silk and colored lights of the K. of C.

So great was the crowd that not until many of those who attended just to enjoy the program had left was dancing really enjoyable, and the scene was a brilliant one, composed of the handsome gowns of the women and the happy faces of all against the rich background of the decorations.

A splendid program had been provided. A little after eight o'clock the assembling crowd was entertained with delightful music by The Imperial Broadcasting Orchestra, including the singing of "Pal of My Cradle Days," sung by Thomas Dolan and escorted to a repeat. The special program began with a classic dance
by two dancing stars from George M.
Colman's "Rise of Rosie O'Reilly" Company. Sherman and Ryan, announced as the two Scandinavian singers—Broadway's favorite singing comedians, made a big hit with that big audience as they sang "How Do You Do?" "Too Many Mamas," "Nobody Knows What Happened to Mc-Carley," "Grand Opera," and
"What's Goin' to Be Next." They were enthusiastically received every time.

Then "Baby Edna Kerr," America's foremost juvenile comedienne, captivated the audience with her songs, her stories and her toe and fancy dancing.

Two comedy singers, with fine
voices and a real sense of comedy,
next highly entertained the crowd,
their travesty on the duet from "Il Trovatore" (in costume) bringing down the house. The program closed with several greatly enjoyed songs by
"The Apex Quartet," staging musicians, and another specialty dance.

The floor committee headed by Bernard Feeney deserves special mention. The great task of arranging seats for the comfort of the record crowd was accomplished with great skill.

The fund that will be created by this Charity Ball will be used for far more calls for real charity than the community has any real idea of. The charitable efforts of the K. of C. are so unostentatious that they are little known about, yet they are offered generously to Protestant or Catholic, Jew or Gentile, the one appeal which they recognize being that of genuine need. Furthermore, their acts of charity are so quietly performed that many in need are helped without embarassment, for the K. of C. live up to the admonition, "Let not your right hand know what your left hand
doeth."

BARBOUR WILL TELL OF STOCK SWINDLERS.

William H. Barbour, who as assistant manager of the Investors' Protective Department of the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, has charge of all investigations of stock and real estate promotions, brokerage concerns, industrial projects and similar financial probing, will be the speaker at Monday evening's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. He will talk on "The Promoters' Bag o' Tricks."

He is a straight-from-the-shoulder talker. There is never any question where he stands. No hesitancy about giving the facts and mentioning names. With a broad and in-imate knowledge of local and unlit-erate stock Mr. Barbour exposes the tricks of the stock promoter and then tops off his talk with some pointed ways of protecting your bank account. As a former metropolitan newspaper man and Chamber of Commerce secretary he knows the community's promotion problems.

The Burns official is coming to Kingston to also assist the Chamber of Commerce in ridding the city of the promoters who use the mails by getting the story home to the buyers or prospective buyers of the facts so that they may know whether they may be forward to reasonable riches or a bad financial headache.

Records to be proud of

In the Willys-Knight Great Six the inherent features which made the following records possible, are included in a chassis and body-structure of surpassing quality and refinement:

The world's record for continued operation at full load (Motordrome
International, Paris—240 hours—Knight-type aeroplane motor); the highest power-development
throughout its entire range, ever reached per cubic inch of piston displacement (Willys-Knight, America—Daimler-Knight, England); the highest sustained speed

ever attained by any stock car (Voisin, France—106.7 miles per hour for 500 miles); the greatest European hill-climbing test in high gear (Willys-Knight, Klausen Pass, Switzerland).

The new WILLYS FINANCE PLAN offers easy time-payment terms of the lowest credit-out in the industry.

Drake Bandits Die on Gallows

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 12.—Jack Woods and Joe Holmes, the Drake hotel bandits, settled their debt to society today.

Side by side in the Cook county jail, the two men were hanged for the murder of Frank Rodkey, cashier of the hotel last summer, in one of the most sensational holdups in years.

Both men walked steadily to the gallows, shouting good bye to other prisoners from furious puffs on cigarettes which guards removed from between their lips as the nooses were adjusted.

"I plead not guilty—again," said Holmes in his last statement.

"I have made my peace with God. I am ready," said Woods.

Both were bitter at what they called "unfairness" that they should hang while William Melnechuk, leader of the gang, should have escaped with all the loot.

Society Notes

Lowell Club Meeting Postponed.

On account of the death of Major James H. Everett, the special meeting of the Lowell Club which was to have been held Tuesday, February 16, is indefinitely postponed. The next regular meeting of the club will be held Tuesday, February 23, at the home of Mrs. H. R. Brigham.

McClure-Bacon

Announcements have been received in this city of the marriage of Joseph Clarence McClure and Venitia Danner Bacon, on February 8, at Christ Church rectory, Mobile, Alabama. Mr. McClure, who was for some time the organist of St. John's Church, founder of the McClure Trio of this city, and accompanist of Charles Baldwin Allen, is well known here where he made many friends both through his music and his own genial personality.

Delightful Subscription Dance.

The Y. W. C. A. Hall was the scene Friday evening of a delightful social function when the Second Subscription Dance was given. The committee in charge, including Harold F. King and Wallace Codrigan, had secured Ben Barlett's Blue Room Boys for the music of the evening, and on all sides expressions of delight in their music for dancing was heard. The day, Lincoln's Birthday, was not forgotten, and a fine portrait of Lincoln backed by the American flag formed the one outstanding piece of decoration, while a soft yellow shading of the lights and wall decorations made an artistic setting to the beautiful gowns worn by the fairest of Kingston's women. The refreshments were in charge of Mrs. Daley who in addition to the punch served sandwiches, cake and coffee during the evening.

DIED.

EVERETT.—In this city, February 12, 1926, James H. Everett, 105 Maiden Lane, on Monday at 2:30 p. m. Relatives and friends are invited. Interment in Wiltwyck Cemetery. Kindly omit flowers.

Attention Pratt Post, No. 127, G. A. R.

The comrades are requested to assemble at the armory on Monday, February 15th, at 1:30 p. m., to attend the funeral service of our late Commander, James H. Everett. Automobiles will be furnished.

VIRGIL BRITT, Sr. Vice-Commander.

JOY S. ROSA, Acting Adjutant.

Attention Tappan Camp, No. 1, S. of V.

This camp will assemble at the residence of Brother George M. Stummons, 125 Franklin street, on Sunday evening, February 14, at 7 o'clock, to proceed to the residence of the late Commander James H. Everett, to pay our last respects to our fatherly comrade.

OLIVER M. BUSH, Commander.

JOY S. ROSA, Sec'y.

MURDOCH.—At Ashokan, N. Y., February 12, 1926, Lillian M. Murdoch, wife of the late John G. Murdoch.

Funeral private at the chapel of A. Carr & Son.

VAN STEENBURGH.—Entered into rest in this city, February 12, 1926, Irene, infant daughter of Fred and Lillian Van Steenburgh, at the family residence, 75 Hunter street.

Funeral and interment private. Arrangements by Thomas J. Wolf.

In loving memory of our dear father, John A. Fletcher, Sr., who died at home six years ago today, February 12, 1920.

Sleep on, dear Father, thy work is done.

Thy soul is at rest, and thy spirit is at peace.

Thy loved ones are all well and hope to all God in Heaven above.

SONS AND DAUGHTERS.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 12.—Stocks of the coal companies and coal roads made an immediate response today to the winding up of the coal strike, and the high priced industrials and specialties advanced impressively.

Lehigh Valley jumped 4 points to 87; Delaware and Hudson was 5 points at 169; Lackawanna 4, and Reading 2. Philadelphia and Reading Coal sold up 2 points.

General Electric forged ahead to 37½, up 9 points for the day and 31 points since Monday on reports of an impending split up of the stock and an offering of $400 a share by the "market crowd."

American Can at 229 showed a new gain of 4 points, up 27 for the week. Allied Chemical continued its spectacular advance to 142, completing a gain of 14 points since last Saturday.

Du Pont was around 234, up 5 points. United States Steel sold more than a point higher.

Devoe and Reynolds class A stock broke sharply in the second hour and dropped abruptly from 97 to 71 for a loss of 26 points and a decline of 35 from Thursday's high. American Woolen had another slaking spell and fell about 3 points to a new low for the year at 34. Consolidated Gas led a brilliant advance in the utilities and sold at a record high of 102.

Bearish traders opened up their heavy guns on the industrial and specialty stocks in the final period and succeeded in causing considerable confusion.

Devoe and Reynolds tumbled abruptly to 62 for a loss of 35 points, one of the severest declines in recent Wall Street history. American Woolen declined to 33 for a new record low price since 1913. These developments unsettled the general market, but industrial speculative leaders, oil stocks and utilities recovered near the close. General Electric rushed up to 381 for a gain of 14 points.

The advance of Liberty first 3½'s to 100.25, a new high for the year, featured the listed bond market today. The fourth liberty 4½'s sold in good volume at 102.17 and the treasury 4½'s at 107.25.

Railroad and leading traction bonds were steady.

Modena Woman Charges Bigamy

Daniel P. Lawlor, 33, father of the two infants born to Anna Elizabeth Lowe, whose deaths were the subject of inquests held by Coroner John A. Crand, of Poughkeepsie, is in the Dutchess county jail charged with bigamy. The woman who says she is his first wife is Mrs. Anne Wells Lawlor, formerly of Modena, who entered the charge against him Friday. The case will be presented to the Dutchess county grand jury that meets Tuesday and District Attorney Allen S. Reynolds has indicated that he will present the facts brought out in the inquest regarding the deaths of the two babies.

Lawlor admitted to Sheriff Close that he had been married twice. April 17, 1918, he married Anne Wells, of Modena, at Highland, and they made their home at Walden until March 3, 1921, when she left him and went to Kingston. In 1922 Lawlor went to Poughkeepsie and since that time has been living with Miss Dove at 28 North Perry street.

Odds and Ends

The Henrietta Wynkoop Guild of the First Reformed Church will hold a sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. Lucas Boere, 52 Main street, on Monday afternoon, February 15, at 2:30 o'clock. Business meeting at 3 o'clock. As there is business of importance to be discussed a large attendance is desired.

LIVE-YER DANCE

ON TUESDAY EVENING

The Live Yer Club will hold a pre-Lenten dance in the Y. W. C. A. hall on Tuesday evening, February 16, at 7:30 o'clock. This is an invitation dance and only those securing cards from a member of the club will be admitted. Valentine decorations will be featured and the party promises to be a very pretty one.

The affair is for the benefit of the girls' service fund.

DRAFT DODGERS HELD

ON IMMORALITY CHARGE

Mosbach, Baden, Feb. 13.—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the Philadelphia draft dodger, is under arrest here on an immorality charge, in connection with an alleged offense against a young girl in Heidelberg three years ago.

The authorities are holding Bergdoll, pending an investigation of the charges made against him.

A Cruel Social

An ice cream and cruller social will be held by the Ladies' Aid Society of Trinity Lutheran Church, Spring and Bone streets, on Tuesday evening, February 16, from 5 to 9 o'clock. The clam chowder supper that was to have been held has been postponed on account of weather conditions.

No. 8 P-T. A. Meeting.

A special meeting of the P-T. A. of School No. 8 will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Snyder on Tuesday, February 16, at 3 o'clock. As definite plans for the bazaar to be held in March must be arranged, every member is requested to be present.

Old Fashioned Dance.

There will be an old fashioned dance held Monday evening, February 15, at Twelfth and Rose Company house on Dunn street. Wilbur Boice's orchestra.

Gasoline Up One Cent.

New York, Feb. 13.—The Standard Oil Company of New York and the Sinclair Refining Company today advanced tank wagon gasoline prices 1 cent a gallon throughout their territories.

Tao Lin Won't Interfere.

London, Feb. 13.—Chang Tao Lin has agreed not to interfere with Wu Pei Fu's march upon Peking, according to advices to the foreign office today.

One-Word Sermon

The word "news" is made up of the four letters that indicate the main points of the compass—N. S. E. and W. In a book published more than a century ago, the author comments upon this in a way that is by no means out of date at the present time. He says: "As news implies the intelligence received from all parts of the world, the very word itself points out its meaning—N. the north; E. the east; W. the west, and S. the south. This expressive word also recommends the practice of the following virtues: Nobleness in our thoughts, Equity in our dealings, Wisdom in our counsels, and Sobriety in our enjoyments."

Of French Derivation

The name "moin" is applied in the case of silk raised with a watered or clouded effect. It is from the French word meaning wave. The term "moin" and "moin" both are based upon the characteristic appearance, namely, bright and dull in variegated patches, like the waving of spotted water. The fabric itself sometimes is patterned, but is usually of a solid type as poplin.

Wind God a Snake

In ancient Mexico the wind deity was represented by some form of a snake, a curious fact which archeologists have not been able to understand. The snake usually took a fantastic shape, having feathers, others having two forelegs thrust out in the wind currents and a curious snake like a trumpet. The Mexican Indian name for the wind god was "Quetzalcoatl."

Will Investigate Sharkey Bout

New York, Feb. 13.—Jack Sharkey, of Boston, is still heavyweight champion of New England.

There are a few thousand fans who watched him step through ten rounds of what was advertised to be a boxing contest who will not care how long he remains champion of New England, as long as he stays there. His performance with Eddie Hoffman, of Los Angeles, at Madison Square Garden, was enough to curdle the morning's milk.

Sharkey got the decision, but Chancellor Parley and Commissioner Muldoon of the State Athletic Commission, who witnessed the contest, ordered the money of the fighters held up. It was said by Deputy Commissioner Dan Skillman that this action was taken because Sharkey's application for renewal of his license in this state had been filed late.

It may be stated without fear of contradiction that the match and every circumstance connected with it will be fully investigated.

The New England fighter went into the ring with fifteen pounds the stronger than Hoffman, but seldom cut loose and fought.

Huffman, always trying to overcome his disadvantage in weight, height and reach, had his single chance in the sixth when he lashed out with a right to the jaw and Sharkey nearly went down. He recovered quickly, however.

Poet's Tomb Neglected

In the political confusion which marked the reign of Charles I, the tomb of the poet Ben Jonson remained unmarked until a casual visitor, Sir John Young, had "O Rare Ben Jonson" cut on it.

FIRE PREVENTION.

Question—When a frame building burns down, what is left? Answer—The chimney alone, because it is built of brick. Chimneys are built of brick because they are fireproof. Why not construct the whole building of brick, that is Real Fire Prevention. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. When you build, use brick exclusively. There may be a slight increase in first cost, but always a large saving in maintenance. Building brick and sand. TERRY BROTHERS CO. Tel. 1674.

Hoff Will Break Records Any Time

New York, Feb. 13.—There are two things that will prevent Charley Hoff, the bird without wings, from clearing an incredible height of approximately 15 feet in the pole vault tonight, or any other, and only one of them is important. The other has to do with the fact that he will not care to extend himself at this premature moment, poor showman-ship being regarded as a trait unbecoming a gentleman and an athlete.

There will be many more meets after the W.P.C.A. Games tonight and Charles intends to gratify the populace by degrees that the important impediment is that carrying a pole long enough to achieve 15 feet would interfere with Hoff working up the necessary speed in approaching the uprights.

Hoff can beat 14 feet indoors, without trouble. The other night he cleared 15 feet, 2 inches with more than a foot to spare. He used the longest possible pole, 15 feet from end to end, and even at that had to have an extra piece of wood attached to the stick. Only an athlete freak, such as Hoff, could wield this bit of equipment with ease. The short, muscular type of vaulter would have to clutch the pole too low. The average tall man with strength would be too heavy.

Hoff combines the physical assets of both, without any of their liabilities. He stands 6 feet 2 inches, weighs 145 pounds and has the wiry strength of a steel spring.

Lack of equipment is the only thing that will keep him away from 15 feet when he gets ready.

In fact, so certain is he of his mastery that he is regulating the heights to conform with his succession of appearances. Tonight, the writer is given to understand, he will probably do 12 feet 2 1/2 inches and call it an evening. By the time March rolls around, he expects to have attained 14 feet, with probably his final and supreme effort reserved for the Knights of Columbus meet, March 16 or the postoffice games, March 23.

At either or both, it is his intention, they say, to do 14 feet six inches.

FLEISCHMANN'S H. S. DEFEATS INDEPENDENTS.

The Clinton Avenue Independents, traveling to Fleischmanns, Friday evening entered into the camp of a powerful aggregation and consequently came home on the short end of a 33 to 21 tally. The Clintons were much outwitted by the mountain aggregation but nevertheless fought stubbornly to avenge defeat but in the second half the high school lads built up a static lead which the Clintons were unable to cut down.

BRIDGE CITY WITH TWO BASEBALL CLUBS.

It appears baseball will have a healthy time in Poughkeepsie this season as there will be two clubs in town for Sunday baseball, making it a competition enterprise and consequently better and faster baseball games.

Poughkeepsie baseball players will have an opportunity to play Sunday ball there this summer with the Beckwith Club providing they can make the grade. This was the statement of Guy Beckwith, former college pitcher, who intends to play Sunday ball at the new field at Spring Lake. But if the other valley outfits are stronger than his team he will strengthen his club with college players.

Harold Grindie, who owns the property at Spring Lake, will start an army of workmen at Spring Lake early in March, clearing off the grounds and putting things in shape.

While these plans are being made for the Spring Lake Park, the Red Sox Club authorities are also busy arranging for their diamond to be as busy as ever this season at Fairview Park. Charley Lamaris, one of the club owners, has stated he didn't care how many parks were being built in Poughkeepsie, the Red Sox would be in the field again with a stronger team than ever this season.

Spalla Coming Here.

Genoa, Feb. 13.—The Italian boxer Spalla sailed for New York today, where he will train for his forthcoming match with Luis Firpo.

K. H. S. Easily Trims Middies

As guests of the Maroon and White basketball team in the High School gym, Friday evening, the Middies made their last important stand in the Duso League race, a stand to keep themselves from landing permanently in the cellar position, but for the sixth time this court season the Middletown team was forced to again step aside for a more powerful opponent, the K. H. S. outfit defeating them by a 27 to 10 tally.

During nearly the entire contest the locals managed to keep their score doubled on the Middies, at half time the Kingstonians having planned a 11 to 5 score on their down-river opponents. Coach O'Leary's band started out for points at the very opening of the affair and at quarter time it was evident that they far outclassed the Middletown aggregation.

Only once did the Middies get as familiar with the basket as to drop in a two-pointer. This market came late in the second quarter when Baker, leading scorer for the visitors with three points managed to let one glide through the irons.

Irwin was the most active of the K. H. S. outfit, making six points for his aggregation, with three fields from the floor. Smith at center dropped in a double and three singles for five markers. Coach O'Leary started the contest with the first varsity and left this outfit in the match until the end of the first half, when the second varsity went in the game for a quarter, being supplanted by the first team again in the final period.

In a preliminary affair the Faculty completed a great upset in trimming the Alumni by a 10 to 5 score. The Alumni team was composed of Dolson, Johnson, Corrigan, Deeres, Allen, Kirchner and Thompson.

LEADER TEAM MEETS CONGREGATIONALS TONIGHT

The Leader team will make an effort this evening to get back on a winning road again when it meets the Congregational team at Epworth Hall. The Congregational outfit has greatly improved its brand of basketball within the last two or three weeks, being successful in dropping the Clinton Seniors last week. It being the first time it has ever trimmed this aggregation. The Congregational team will be picked from Planthaber, Harris, Lebert, Stalter, Emmick and Lawrence. The Leader aggregation will line up with Cahill at center, Snyder and Rainford, forwards and Davitt and Hyatt guards. This contest is scheduled for 7:45. Following this match the S. A. team will play Ellenville High School team.

Jewtraw vs. Thunberg.

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 13.—With each skater having won a race, the duel between Charles Jewtraw, local ice speedster, and Clas Thunberg, of Finland, will be resumed today with two more races of the series. They will meet in a half mile race at the American style of man-against-man and a 1 1/2 mile event this afternoon.

Stecher Won Match.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—Joe Stecher, of Nebraska, world's wrestling champion, threw George Catze, Italian champion, in one hour forty six minutes and forty seconds, here last night with his famous scissors hold.

Ample Snow and Facilities Make Ski Meet Big Success

Increased interest in skiing, plenty of snow, and ample facilities for the sport are combining to give Chicago the greatest ski winter in its history. The season opened with the annual tournament at the Grand Beach slide.

Leads All Jockeys

Sport Notes

John L. Sullivan knocked out 165 men on his famous tour.

Hong Fong Lee, aged twenty-seven, an American-born Chinese, and prominent in boxing circles in San Francisco as a heavyweight, has a record of eight knock-outs.

Napoleon Lajoie, old second-base star of the Cleveland club, has accepted a position as commissioner of the Ohio-Pennsylvania league, an independent organization.

The football squad of the Mooseheart (Ill.) high school lays claim to the national championship having been undefeated last season. Every member of the team is milk-fed.

Tentative dates, the weeks of September 23 and 30, have been named by the women's committee of the United States Golf association for the women's championship next year.

Cyrus Lebourreau, left fielder, who was obtained from Nashville by the Kansas City club of the American association, has been traded for Fred Nicholson, outfielder of the Toledo club.

Receipts from all sports at Yale this year amounted to $201,238, of which $200,372 was taken in at the football gate. The minor sport teams showed a deficit averaging about $5,000 a piece.

Because of a tie in the election for the University of Missouri football team for next year, the team will have two leaders—Pete Jackson of St. Louis and R. F. Marchus of Kansas City, both seniors next year.

Arthur Trade of Centralia, Mo., has been signed as a recruit catcher by the St. Paul club. Trade, who is twenty-two years old and over six feet tall, has had virtually no minor league experience.

A combined Oxford-Cambridge inter-collegiate team will meet the United States team in a series of basketball matches. Their first game will be with the University of Maryland on April 3.

There are also major league players still using the outfield—three in the National and six in the American. All of them are claimed as veteran players who have been using the outfield for ten years or more.

Rev. Charles H. Urban, the "Fighting Parson," on the freshman football team of the University of Pennsylvania, has taken up wrestling for the winter. He is six feet, one inch in height and weighs 192 pounds, and is the father of two children.

Married Men, Remember "What a guy," says one Albany (Ga.) married man, "we can't forget the old days when we were single. People say about us as easily as a married man forgets to smile his wife's important forgets. (Note: All wives better see important.)"

MISS WILLS ADDS TWO MORE VICTORIES

Cannes, Feb. 13.—Helen Wills continued her drive through the early rounds of the Carlton club tournament here today, when she defeated Miss St. 'Omer Roy 6-0, 6-0.

Miss Wills again displayed her very best brand of tennis. She appears to be stealing a bit of Suzanne's stuff, for she seems to be out to win everything in love sets.

Miss Wills also continued her successes in the doubles when with Mlle. Contoslavos, her partner, she defeated Mrs. Young and Miss Green, 6-0, 6-2.

Miss Wills is showing much better in the doubles than she did last week and it may be that she and Mlle. Contoslavos will oppose Mlle. Lenglen and Mlle. Didi Vlasto in the finals.

Helen's overhead play was much better today. She scored 52 points against Mlle. Roy's 21.

RED SHIELDS FAILED TO REACH PORT JERVIS

Because of the poor condition of the roads Captain Miller's Salvation Army team could not make the trip to Port Jervis Friday evening, and the contest had to be cancelled. The team left Kingston in three cars but near Middletown they found the roads so completely blocked that they were forced to return to Kingston.

Popular Name for Ship

In the late Tudor and early Stuart periods, "Mayflower" was a common name for ships. The reason is obscure.
